

Rose Hill Farm Barn & Milk House

127 Bullard Circle (related to Rose Hill Farm)

The Rose Hill Barn and Milk House is a good example of a small-scale 20th century agricultural barn and dairy. New discoveries in public health in the late 19th century led to requirements for the sanitary collection and storage of fresh milk in a separate building, distinct from the barn. This agricultural set is associated with the adjacent estate home of the Bullard family known as Rose Hill Mansion. The Barn and Milk House was built ca. 1900 by a previous owner, but Dr. Ernest Bullard assembled a large farm property that included this property, Rose Hill Mansion and Chesnut Lodge Sanatorium.
